Skill-Matcher

How can you find a job based on your skills and competencies?

Being aware of your skills and competencies and having solid examples that highlight your experience, abilities and accomplishments will be essential to market yourself effectively when you are looking for work.

What it is?

Skill-Matcher is the app that will ensure you a place in the world of employment. You can easily find a job based on your skills and competencies by simply following the instructions of the app. This can provide you the opportunity of discovering your hidden talents.

Skills and Competencies

Skills can be defined as the ability to do something well. Identifying your skills is an important part of making a realistic career decision. Very often, we are not aware of the skills we possess because they are so much a part of us. We also tend to underestimate our skills. For example, some people assume that because they lack paid work experience they do not have any marketable skills. All our past experiences - volunteer work, leisure activities, community involvement - need to be examined when identifying our skills. This section aims to increase your understanding of competency identification aimed specifically for today's competitive graduate recruitment process. It will help you:

- Target your CV at a particular vacancy or industry
- Enhance your answers in a competency based application form
- Practise your interview technique and structure your competency answers
- Prepare yourself for strong performance at an assessment centres

- Familiarise yourself with the competencies used by employers in graduate recruitment

Last step

Skill-Matcher takes into account all the above in order to prepare you and find for you, an ideal dream job. There are many examples of people that their life is not the same anymore. If you want to follow your dreams, download the app and match it!

The Greatest Happiness In This World Is The Witness Of This World

No stress, it will be very easy and wonderful! I know; the unknown can intimidate people. This is a process that is very natural and lived by all those who went abroad for the first time. We're all happy and glad to being part of the experiment, you're going to come back with very good memories and I'm sure, you will make it successfully.

Whether you're going to buy tomatoes from a greengrocer or whether it's the first day of your new job, doesn't matter, Everything that will be done for the first time will feels stressful to the human it is not necessary to have a heavy social phobia, if you do something that you do not know how well it is done, then you can go around in your mind, it is quite normal.

"This is actually the first time that we go abroad." Yes, this process is now extremely normalized for me but we do not really know what to do because still we get so many messages on web sites from who were afraided for meet with foreigner and decide the delay to know another culture, it is actually "very simple" to explain this process ,like saying but I guess I need to explain that with a little bit more details, marbe it might works for so many people for who live kind of problems. If you want me to empathize , I've never been abroad until the age of 19. And I was thinking only "God, I hope I don't have to go alone, I'll forget something certain or I'll do something wrong" I was panicked. Anything you do for the first time can be frightening, a very ordinary situations may look like a potential horror movie scene. At least I will give you some of tips . Before the begining case I wouldnt like to let you live that "I with we had know the in the first time".

- First of all make a list. What will you need there and try to make that before then 3 days ago your departure
- Try to lokal food on the streets wherever you gone ,cause traditional food show us ,their culture and personality of the people but of courier be careful about it, if you dont want to your travel turn to toilet tour.
- Sometimes, some of applications on the smart phones can be your best friend and lifesaver for you.
- Of course dont forget to get ports 2 house early
- By the way if you wish to travel without and problem or dont work on details, you can follow these; If you wanna the museums there, you should check to close and open times and days. If you dont wanna pay extra commission at ports, you can exchange your money in your country but enver forget to take some your own money with you cause dont think that you will never come back.

How can a CV transform to a nightmare

The way you present your Curriculum Vitae can have an overwhelming influence over whether your CV is even read, let alone get you that all important interview. CV's are different in name only, they describe the same thing: A document that chronicles personal details, career history and achievements! You will need to consider what to include, how much detail is needed and how to make your CV stand out from all the others. Here are the golden rules to abide by when constructing your CV.

Don'ts

- Include salary information and expectations. Leave this for negotiations after your interview.
- Include information which may be viewed negatively failed exams, failed business ventures, reasons for leaving a job, points on your driving license. Don't lie, but just don't include this kind of information.
- Don't give the interviewer any reason to discard you at this stage.
- Be tempted to shrink the font or reduce the margins to get more information in. Keep it easy to read. If you need to say more, use another page, but ask yourself if the extra detail really adds value.
- Include referees just state they are available on request.
- Include all of the jobs you have had since school, just the relevant ones. Add details about your most recent qualifications, which are more relevant, but summarize the rest.
- Use jargon, acronyms, technical terms unless essential.
- Lie employers have ways of checking what you put is true.
- Include a photo unless requested.

Do's

- Construct your CV with your prospective employer in mind. Make it easy for them to conclude that you are a strong candidate.
- Tailor your CV to the job. Your CV should be tailored for the job you're applying for, focusing on the parts that are important for that particular job.
- Use a clear, uncluttered layout, without too many special effects. If you want to use bold text, indentation or even frames, feel free but keep in mind that the ultimate goal is to make the CV a quick read.
- Use positive language. when describing your work achievements use power words such as launched, managed, coordinated, motivated, supervised, liaised and achieved.
- Explain all significant breaks in your career or education
- Place the important information up-front. Put experience and education achievements in reverse chronological order starting with your current job and working backwards.
- Give a brief describe of the companies that you worked for and your major achievements in bullet form.
- Include experience and interests that might be of use to the employer: IT skills, voluntary work, foreign language competency, driving skills, leisure interests that demonstrate team skills and organization/leadership skills.
- Put your name and email address on every page.

Do you want to work abroad? Then listen to the story of Thomas.

21 September, 2018

Interviewer: Bianca Bunea

Person interviewed: Thomas Nevolianis

How old are you?

I am 25 years old.

Where are you currently living?

I am living in Germany.

What university did you finish?

Ive graduated from the University of Ioannina, in Greece and currently I am doing my master in RWTH Aachen University with specialization in Experimental Condensed Matter.

What was your first job?

I was a waiter and I was 16 years old. The reason of working was the money. I didnt feel like I was happy or unhappy, it was just a job for making extra money. My colleagues were good, I didnt have any conflicts with them. The money werent really good. I used the money for going out and buying new clothes.

Where are you working now?

I am working in an institute in Germany, it is related to my field.

How did you decided to work in another country?

I decided to do that because in my country you dont have good opportunities to work, also you dont earn enough money so a lot of people leave the country.

Why Germany?

I chose Germany because there are a lot of opportunities in my work field.

What are you working?

I work as an academic researcher.

Did you know the language?

N and I dont have to because the university, the master I am doing is in english

so you dont have to speak german and all my friends are internationals and also the german friends are speaking in english. Besides that, I have the basic german knowledge and I am trying to improve it.

How was it at the beginning?

It was really difficult. First, I couldnt find a place to stay, I stayed in a hostel for 1 month and I was searching for an apartment.

Did you have moments when you wanted to give up?

I believe in the beginning everybody has difficult moments but you have to try to move on. I am not going to lie, it was really hard for me because I didnt know anybody, I didnt have any relatives or friends and that wasnt making my life easier.

What was the most difficult thing for you when you left your country?

Staying away from my family and friends.

Do you visit your friends and family? Do you miss them? Yes, I visit them twice/year. Sometimes I miss them a lot but I got used living in a foreign country but family will always be family.

What you wish you knew when you first moved in another country?

Of course, I started searching online how I can find a place to stay or how will I find a job, all the papers, the beaurocracy and through social media how to make new friends in order not to be alone and to help you with different things.

What should everybody avoid when they start working in another country?

Someone has to prepare himself really good before going there, to choose the right destination because some people are always ending in different destinations, to have a valid passport, to have enough money and to think about learning the language because at some point you will need it.

What were the things that impressed you at your workplace?

In Germany, the things are very organized, therefore the moving from Greece to Germany is a big change. The things that mostly impressed me are the environment of the work, the colleagues, the relationship between the boss and his workers and of course the salary compared to Greece.

What are your advices for people who want to work in another country?

I am not going to lie to you, every start is difficult but after a while you can understand the difference. So I strongly recommend to the people that dont have anything to do in their country to grow up their opportunity and move on. At least they will have the chance to try and in the worst case they can return back to their country.
