DO'S and DON'TS on a CV

DO'S

- 1. Follow the Correct CV Format:

Personal details – include: your name and contact details

Education – include details of your degree, relevant training and professional accreditation.

Work History – list your employment history, start with the most recent first. Include: dates, job title, duties and responsibilities.

Experience - write about your experience in the similar work you are applying for.

Skills – list your skills which you think are important for this job.

Hobbies – write hobbies you really enjoy doing in your free time, not the ones you think looks good in a CV.

- 2. Cover letter

It is important to attach a cover letter to your CV whether it is specified or not. You should include a position you are applying for, your skills and some research about the company. The cover letter should be about 2-3 paragraphs. Make sure you write a different cover letter for each job you are applying. Do not send the same letter for all companies.

3. Choose the Right Font

Times New Roman is one of the most commonly used fonts but you may find that Cambria or Calibri are better options for digital applications. The ideal font size is 11; remember, the hiring manager will be scanning your CV so it needs to be nice and easy to read.

4. Keep it Neat and Tidy

Do not forget to check for spelling and grammatical errors, ensure your CV is not squashed up.

DON'TS

1. Tell a Lie

Do not include the information which is not true. Hiring managers are more careful than ever before when performing background checks. If you are deemed to be the right candidate, a thorough check is likely and your deception will probably be uncovered. Even if you get the job, there's a strong possibility that the lie will eventually come back to haunt you.

2. Including Irrelevant Personal Information

You don't need to include your nationality and you definitely don't need to mention your age.

Although employers aren't legally allowed to dismiss your application based solely on how old you are, you'll never know if that's the reason they rejected you. Other needless data includes ethnicity, sexual orientation, health status and marital status.

3. Include a picture of yourself

Do not include a photograph of yourself on your CV unless necessary – the vast majority of professional jobs go to the person with the best looking CV, not the photograph.

4. Add Negative Information

This means no mention of divorces, failed exams, driving license points and failed business start-up attempts. Additionally, don't complain about a previous employer or even give reasons why you left. You'll be up against stiff competition for the role, don't give the hiring manager any reason to discard your application.

A SUCCES STORY

Hello, Ms. Zeynep. -Your success has made quite a splash in the business world. Would you like to share the secret of your success with us? Hello, I want to start the conversation by thanking you for your nice thoughts. I was born on October 13, 1992 in Malatya. This success story started with my interest in computers at an early age. Although I wanted very much to own a computer, I was not bought a computer due to financial difficulties. I used to go to technology stores and constantly examine computers there and learn new things about computers. Later, the owner of the business, who saw that I was going there all the time, gave me a computer, I showed my computer to my friends and I told them that I would develop a software with this computer and that everyone would use this software in the future. I did research on development. When the information I researched on the computer was insufficient, I thought that the books related to software would be useful and started to work as a cashier in our neighbor's market after school. I bought books with the money I earned. I started a job with a low salary.

A SUCCES STORY

This is how I came to my last year of university. A software assignment on 'online shopping' was given as a final thesis in my final year. I showed this assignment to my boss and he liked it very much. He offered financial support to put this thesis into practice and in return offered to be a partner. This project became popular throughout the country in a short time and I took over the company completely. My company grew gradually and I started to open branches abroad. I saw that these 12 items brought me here:

- 1 Innovativeness
- 2 Frugality
- 3 Ambition
- 4 Experimentation
- 5 Marginalism
- 6 Simplicity
- 7 Being Consumer Oriented
- 8 Breaking Taboos
- 9 Focus
- 10 Determination
- 11 Evaluating Opportunities
- 12 Flexibility
